Local man (John Peterson age-36) found dead in his trailer after consuming nearly 9lbs of spaghetti.

His corpse was discovered February 3rd, three weeks after his death when the local police department got a call complaining about the smell coming from the trailer. John was found beneath his sink with dried spaghetti hanging from his mouth and face, seemingly dead from asphyxiation.

His neighbors, when questioned, stated, "John rarely left his trailer." John's death was investigated as foul play but resulted in it being pinned as an unlucky and grotesque accident. It seems that this is yet another unfortunate case of a man who was mentally disturbed and didn't receive needed help in time.

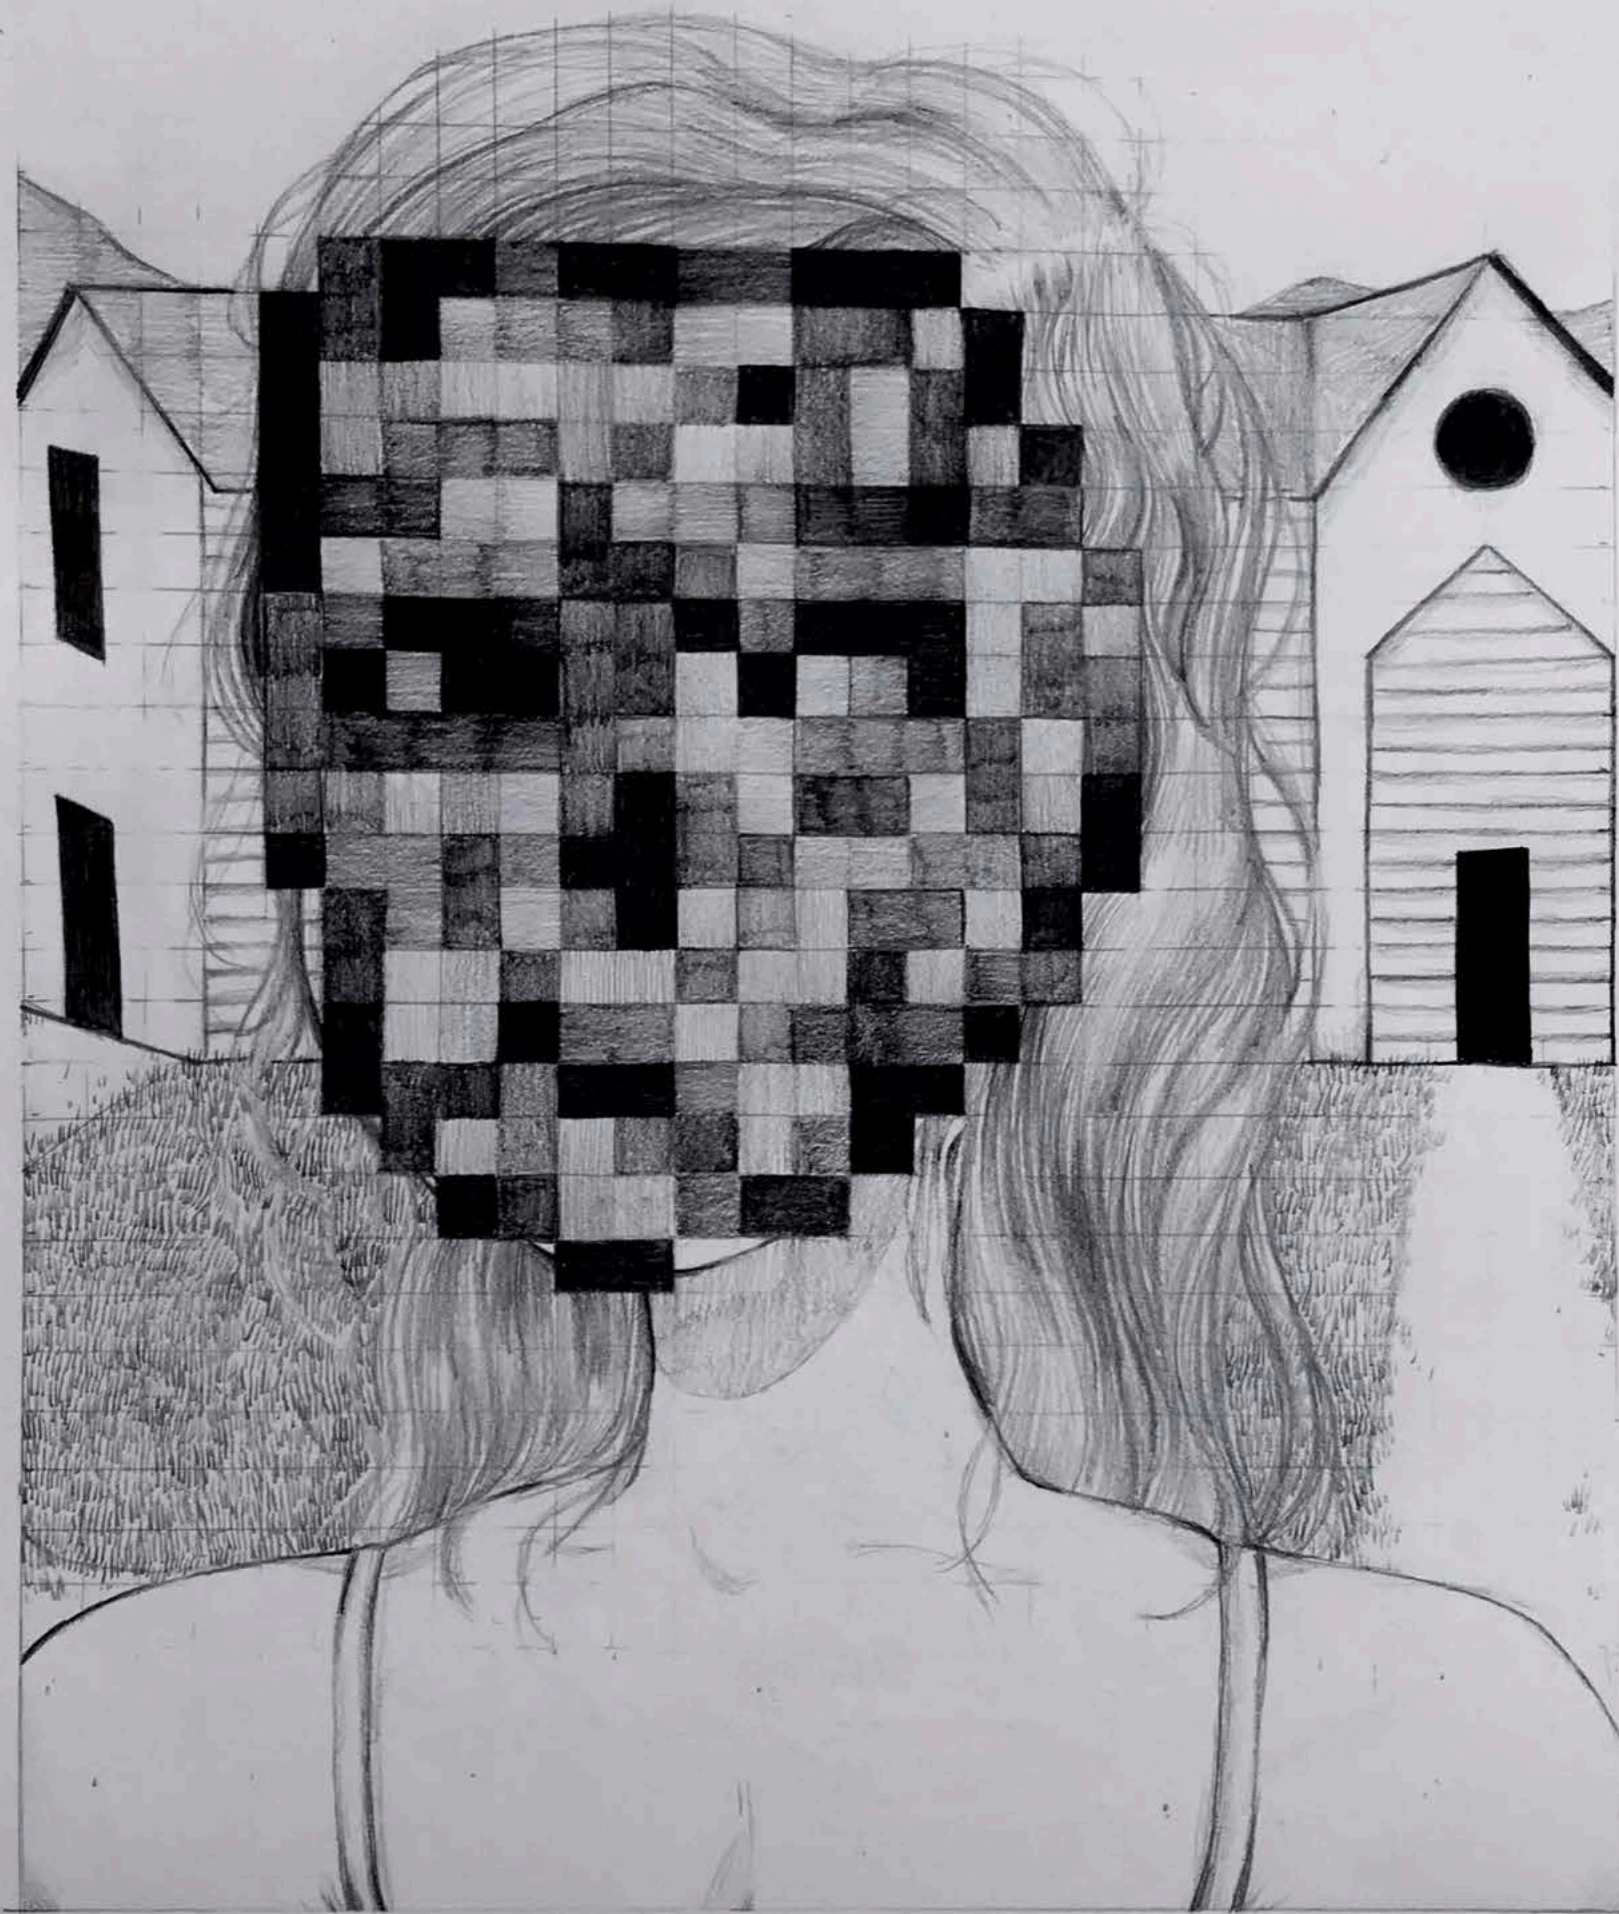

oklahoman woman Ann Winchester has been found dead in her and her husband's home this Sunday morning. Her death is suspected to be a suicide as Ann had show signs of acute bipolar disorder, Paranoia, and generalized mania.

In the weeks leading up to her death Ann had reported a complaint to the local police about "the shadows in (her) home". Her husband when questioned stated he new nothing of Ann's report and refused further questioning and remains suspect.
